

CHAPTER TWO

LEADERSHIP STYLES AND THEORIES

Leadership Styles

- The pattern of behavior displayed by a leader in influencing the behavior of his followers is called the style of leadership.
- When leaders interact with followers they employ combination of traits, skills and behaviors that is called leadership style.
- Different styles were needed for different situations and each leader needs to know when to exhibit a particular approach.

Autocratic or Authoritarian Leader

- keep the decision-making authority and control in their hands and take full responsibility for all actions.
- They structure the situations in their own way and expect the workers to follow their orders.
- The motivational approach of the leader can be threat and punishment or appreciation and rewards.

Cont...

- Autocratic leaders neither trust staff nor allow for employees input.

Characteristics of Autocratic Leadership

- The leader makes the decisions and closely supervises employees
- Highly conscious of his /her position
- They are sensitive about their authority
- One-way communication
- They are willing to delegate a very little decision-making authority
- The leader believes that pay is just a reward for working and the only reward that will motivate employees
- Orders are issued to be carried out with no questions allowed and no explanations needed

Cont...

Advantage

- Autocratic Leadership most effective:
- When new, untrained staff do not know which tasks to perform or procedures to follow
- When effective supervision provided only through detailed orders and instructions
- When staff do not respond to any other leadership style
- When limited time in which to make a decision
- When work needs to be coordinated with another department or organization

Disadvantage

- Autocratic leadership should not be used or ineffective:
- Staff become tense, fearful, or resentful
- Staff depend on their leader to make all their decisions
- Low staff morale, high turnover and absenteeism and work stoppage

Democratic or Participative Leadership

- Subordinates are consulted and their feedback is taken into decision-making process.
- The leader Keeps staff informed about everything that affects their work and shares decision making and problem-solving responsibilities.
- There is a good management-labor understanding or relations, higher morale and greater job satisfaction.

Characteristics of Democratic Leadership

- Share decision making authority with subordinates
- leader appreciates suggestions from subordinates; two ways of communication
- The leader shows high concern for both task and people; Leaders are not sensitive about their authority
- New ideas/change proposed by a group is respected; Develops a feeling of responsibility within the group; Motivates subordinates with subordinates;
- Increases the quality of work and productivity;
- If forced to make a decision alone the leader explains his/her reason to the group/subordinates

Cont...

Advantages

- Democratic leadership is most effective:
- When the leader has well educated and experienced staff pull
- When the leader wants to keep staff informed about matters that affect them.
- When the leader wants staff to share in decision-making and problem-solving duties.
- When the leader wants to provide opportunities for staff to develop a high sense of personal growth and job satisfaction.
- When the leader faces large or complex problem that requires lots of input to solve
- When the leader assumes changes must be made or problems solved that affect staff
- When the leader wants to encourage team building and participation

Cont...

Disadvantages

- Not enough time to get everyone's input
- Manager feels threatened by this type of leadership
- Staff safety is a critical concern

Laissez-Faire or Free Rein Leadership Style

- It is a “hands-off” style.
- a leader provides little or no direction and gives staff as much freedom as possible.
- leader consciously makes a decision to pass the focus of power to members, to allow them freedom of action ‘to do as they think best’, and not to interfere.

Cont...

Characteristics of Laissez-faire Leadership

- The leader gives full decision-making authority to the group and shows little interest in the work process or its results;
- Leader exercise little control over the group/ subordinates; Individuals may have little interest in their work;
- Morale and team work are generally low.
- Free rein leadership style can apply in organizations with highly skilled and well-trained professional

Advantages

- An effective style to use when:
- Staff highly skilled, experienced, and educated
- Staff have pride in their work and the drive to do it successfully on their own
- Outside experts, such as staff specialists or consultants used
- Staff trustworthy and experienced

Cont...

Disadvantage

- Staff feel insecure at the unavailability of a leader
- The leader cannot provide regular feedback to staff on how well they are doing
- leader unable to thank staff for their good work
- The leader doesn't understand his or her responsibilities

Bureaucratic Leadership Style

- The focus for the leader is on making certain that employees follow the rules with consistency.
- The manager manages "by the book" (done according to procedure or policy).
- The manager is really more of a police officer than a leader.

Cont...

Characteristics of Bureaucratic Style

- Hierarchy of authority
- Impersonality/power derived from the position
- Written rules of conduct
- Promotion based on achievement
- Specialized division of labor
- Focusses on efficiency

Advantage

Bureaucratic leadership can be effective

- When Employees perform routine tasks regularly
- Employees require specified procedures or standards to ensure consistency
- Employees use delicate or dangerous equipment
- Employees perform tasks comprising handling of substantial cash
- Employees work on construction sites.
- Public officers who lead public institutions

Cont...

Disadvantages

- Work habits formed that are hard to break, especially if they are no longer useful.
- Employees lose their interest in their jobs and in their fellow workers.
- Employees do only what is expected of them and no more.
- Discourages innovation and creativity.

The Charismatic Leader

- Charisma is a form of interpersonal attraction that inspires support and acceptance.
- Leader influence others to follow by the power of their charismatic personality.
- leaders are likely to have a lot of self-confidence, firm confidence in their beliefs and ideas, and a strong need to influence people.

Cont...

- leaders are generally very skilled communicators.
- leaders use effective communication with their followers to gain their trust, and then influence and persuade them to follow.
- leaders also pay a great deal of attention to scanning and reading their environment, and
- are good at picking up the moods and concerns of both individuals and larger audiences.

Transactional Leadership

- assumes that people are motivated primarily by reward and punishment.
- It is based on mutual dependence ('I will give you this, if you do that').

Cont...

- more a manager than a leader, and is highly focused on getting tasks accomplished,
- providing very clear direction, and overseeing productivity in detail
- think inside the box when solving organizational problems.
- concern is with the work process, rather than with forward-thinking ideas.
- Rules, procedures, and standards are essential to the transactional leader.

Transformational leadership

- It has integrity, defines clear goals, encourages clear steps to communication and expressive.
- It encourages, motivates and supports employees, often involves recognizing and rewarding people for their good work.
- inspires their team to work together towards a common target.
- Transformational leaders combine the best practices and are leaders who are trusted and can motivate others.
- Its primary focus is to make change happen in our self, others, groups, and organizations.
- motivate employees and enhance productivity and efficiency through communication and high visibility.
- Leaders focus on the big picture within an organization and delegate smaller tasks to the team to accomplish goals.

Cont...

- Transformational leadership occurs when leaders use ‘the four Is’:
- Intellectual stimulation: encourage others to see what they are doing from new perspectives;
- Idealised influence: articulate the mission or vision of the organisation
- Individualised consideration: develop others to higher levels of ability
- Inspirational motivation: motivate others to put organisational interests before self-interest.

Leading and developing others

- showing genuine concern
- enabling
- being accessible
- encouraging change

Personal qualities

being honest and consistent
acting with integrity being decisive
inspiring others
resolving complex problems

Leading the organisation

networking and achieving focusing effort
building shared vision supporting a developmental culture facilitating change sensitively

Servant leader

- emphasizes the leader's duty to serve his/her follower.
- Leadership arises out of a desire to serve rather than a desire to lead.
- emphasize on developing their followers' personal potential development and facilitating their personal growth.
- Being a leader isn't what to do and expecting them to do it. Need to be servant first.
- Traits of servant leadership:
 - Communicator
 - Open minded
 - Critical thinker
 - Self-directed
 - Exhibits humility

Leadership Theories

- The most widespread one's are: Great Man Theory, Trait Theory, Behavioral Theories, Contingency Theories, Transactional Theories and Transformational Theories.

1. Great Man Theory

- the earliest theory of leadership in the 19th and early 20th centuries.
- assumes that great leader's leadership qualities are innate/intrinsic and cannot be made.
- portray great leaders are heroic, mythic and fated to rise to leadership when needed.
- Believes leaders are exceptional people, born with innate qualities, fated to lead.
- Assumes leaders are gifts of God to mankind. A measure of divinity is attributed to leaders and their actions.
- Assumes everyone cannot aspire to become a leader and to attain greatness.
- Assumes the inborn leadership qualities alone are necessary and sufficient for a leader to exercise influence over his followers and to become successful.

2. Trait Theories of Leadership

- focusing on "what" an effective leader is, not on 'how' to effectively lead.
- assumes that certain physical, social, and personal characteristics are inherent in leaders.
- Physical traits: being young to middle-aged, energetic, tall, and handsome.
- Social background traits: being educated at the "right" schools and being socially prominent or upwardly mobile.
- Social characteristics: being charismatic, charming, tactful, popular, cooperative, and diplomatic.
- Personality/psychological traits: being self-confident, adaptable, assertive, and emotionally stable.
- Task-related characteristics: being driven to excel, accepting of responsibility, having initiative, and being results-oriented.

Traits	Skills
• Adaptable to situations • Alert to social environment • Ambitious and achievement oriented • Assertive • Cooperative • Decisive • Dependable • Dominant (desire to influence others) • Energetic (high activity level) • Persistent • Self-confident • Tolerant to stress • Willing to assume responsibility	• Cleaver (intelligence) • Conceptually skilled • Creative • Diplomatic and tactful • Fluent in speaking • Knowledgeable about group task • Organized (administrative ability) • Persuasive • Socially-skilled

Cont...

The trait approach has the following limitations:

- There are no universal traits that predict leadership in all situations
- Not all leaders possess all of the traits identified.
- List of potentially important traits is endless.
- No consistent patterns have been found that distinguish effective leaders from the ineffective one.
- Difficult to measure traits.
- All traits are not equally important for all situations.

Behavioral Theories

- focuses on the behaviors of the leaders as opposed to their mental, physical or social characteristics.
- Considers the notion of “leaders are made not born”.

The Ohio State University Studies

- Categorizes Leaders behavior in to two dimensions i.e. initiating structure and consideration.

I. Initiating Structure. This dimension refers to the extent to which a leader is likely to define and structure his or her role and those of employees.

- It includes behavior that attempts to organize work, work relationships, and goals.
- Leaders tend to define patterns and channels of communication, and spells out ways of getting the job done.
- They give primary emphasis to the tasks than to their employees.
- Leaders who were high in initiating structure typically had higher levels of group and organization productivity along with more positive performance evaluations.

Cont...

II. Consideration-the extent to which a leader is likely to have job relationships that are characterized by mutual trust, respect for employees' ideas, and regard for their feelings.

- People who are high in consideration show concern for followers' comfort, well-being, status, and satisfaction.
- Followers of leaders who are high in consideration were more satisfied with their jobs; more motivated, and had more respect for their leader.

University of Michigan Studies

- Michigan Studies also identified a two-factor component, “employee-oriented leader” and “production-oriented leader”.

Cont...

- Employee-Oriented Leader: The concern was more on the interpersonal relations with the employees and such leaders paid more attention on the needs of the employees and accepted the individual differences among members.
 - These leaders believe in delegating decision making and aiding employee in satisfying their need by creating a supportive work environment can increase their job performances.
- Production-Oriented Leader: such leaders paid attention to the technical aspects of the job or the tasks assigned to the employees.
 - the leader focusing on completing task and uses close supervision so that subordinates perform their task using specified procedure.
 - focused on plan and defining work, assigning task responsibilities, clear work standard, urge for task accomplishment, technical aspect of the job.
 - regarded the employees as only a means to achieve the ends.

Cont...

- While the Ohio studies considered both its components to be important for effective leadership.
- The Michigan studies gave supremacy to the component of “employee-orientation” over “production-orientation”.

The Managerial/Leadership Grid

- It is based on the styles of “concern for people” and “concern for production”.
- It is used to identify the ideal leadership style as having a high concern for both production and people.
- Can be done on X and Y axis. Each axis is a point scale of 1 to 9.
- The 1 indicates low concern, while the 9 indicates high concern.

Cont...

- Concern for production (quality of policy decision, procedures, work efficiency, volume of output, creativeness of research, processes)
- Concern for people (degree of personal commitment towards goal achievement, maintaining the self-esteem of workers, responsibility based on trust, satisfying interpersonal relations).

Cont...

- Impoverished (1, 1):

- This leader has low concern for both production and people.
- The leader does the minimum required to remain employed in the position.
- The primary objective of the impoverished style is for managers to stay out of trouble.
- This is the least effective approach to leadership.

- Country Club (1, 9):

- This leader has a high concern for people and a low concern production.
- The leader strives to maintain good relations and a friendly atmosphere.
- The primary objective is to create a secure and comfortable atmosphere and trust that subordinates will respond positively.
- This style is often not good for producing results.
- People feel good and happy, but what they are supposed to do lacks priority.
- Ironically, the group suffers ultimately because they fail to achieve.
- The style is common among leaders who are afraid of upsetting people, and/or who fear rejection and being disliked.

Cont...

- The sweatshop managers/authority obedience/Produce or Perish (9,1):

- This leader has a high concern for production and a low concern for people.
- The leader uses position power to coerce employees to do the work.
- People are treated like machines.
- The primary objective is to achieve the organization's goals.
- This style is often referred to as autocratic.
- Leaders using this style seek to control and dominate others.
- A leader like this will commonly take the view that staff should be grateful to be employed and paid a salary.
- Motivation is often attempted through a threat of punishment.
- Can be effective in the short term.

Cont...

- Middle of the Road The organized-person manager (5,5):
 - This leader has balanced, medium concern for both production and people.
 - The leader strives to maintain satisfactory middle-of-the- road performance and moral where there is moderate concern for both the production and the people.
 - A balance between workers' needs and the organization's productivity goals characterize it.
 - The primary objective of this style is to maintain employee morale at a level sufficient to get the organization's work done.

Cont...

- Team Management (9, 9):

- This leader has a high concern for both people and production.
- It strives for maximum performance and employee satisfaction.
- Participation, commitment, and conflict management are emphasized.
- The primary objective is to establish cohesion and foster a feeling of commitment among workers.
- Leaders use collaborative teamwork approach.
- This involves considerable dialogue that enables the development of a shared (not imposed) motivation to achieving the organization's goals.
- This style normally requires that followers are suitably mature and skilled for a high level of involvement.

Theory X and Theory Y

- represent different ways in which leaders view employees.
- Theory X managers believe that employees are motivated mainly by money, are lazy, uncooperative, and have poor work habits.
- Theory Y managers believe that subordinates work hard, are cooperative, and have positive attitudes.
- Theory X is the traditional view of direction and control by managers.
 - The average human being has an inherent dislike of work and will avoid it if he or she can.
 - The average human being prefers to be directed, wishes to avoid responsibility, has relatively little ambition, wants security above all.
 - Because of this human characteristic, most people must be controlled, directed, and threatened with punishment to get them to put forth adequate effort toward the achievement of organizational objectives.

Cont...

- Theory Y is the view that individual and organizational goals can be integrated.
 - The expenditures of physical and mental effort in work are as natural as play or rest.
 - External control and the threat of punishment are not the only means for bringing out effort toward organizational objectives.
 - Commitment to objectives is a function of the rewards associated with their achievement.
 - The average human being learns, under proper conditions, not only to accept but also to seek responsibility.
 - The capacity to exercise a relatively high degree of imagination, ingenuity, and creativity in the solution of organizational problems
 - Under the condition of modern industrial life, the intellectual potentialities of the average human being are only partially utilized.

Contingency Leadership Theory

- argues that there is no single way of leading and that every leadership style should be based on certain situations.
- It considers the leader's characteristics or the leader's behavior.
- The following are the most popular contingency leadership theories.

A. Fiedler's Contingency Model

- It suggests which kinds of managers are likely to be most effective in which situations.
- Believes one's leadership style is a reflection of one's personality (trait theory-oriented) and is basically constant.
- Steps to Use the Model
 1. Determining Your Leadership Style: considers two basic leader styles: relationship-oriented and task-oriented.

Least Preferred Coworker (LPC) Measure

Instructions: Think of the person with whom you can work least well. He or she may be someone you work with now or someone you knew in the past. That person does not have to be the person you like the least but should be the person with whom you had the most difficulty in getting a job done. Describe this person as he or she appears to you by circling the appropriate number for each of the following items.

1. Pleasant	8	7	6	5	4	3	2	1	Unpleasant
2. Friendly	8	7	6	5	4	3	2	1	Unfriendly
3. Rejecting	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	Accepting
4. Tense	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	Relaxed
5. Distant	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	Close
6. Cold	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	Warm
7. Supportive	8	7	6	5	4	3	2	1	Hostile
8. Boring	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	Interesting
9. Quarrelsome	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	Harmonious
10. Gloomy	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	Cheerful
11. Open	8	7	6	5	4	3	2	1	Closed
12. Backbiting	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	Loyal
13. Untrustworthy	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	Trustworthy
14. Considerate	8	7	6	5	4	3	2	1	Inconsiderate
15. Nasty	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	Nice
16. Agreeable	8	7	6	5	4	3	2	1	Disagreeable
17. Insincere	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	Sincere
18. Kind	8	7	6	5	4	3	2	1	Unkind

Scoring Interpretation

Your final LPC score is the sum of the numbers you circled on the 18 scales. If your score is 57 or below, you are a low LPC, which suggests that you are task motivated. If your score is within the range of 58 to 63, you are a middle LPC, which means you are independent. People who score 64 or above are called high LPCs, and they are thought to be more relationship motivated.

Because the LPC is a personality measure, the score you get on the LPC scale is believed to be quite stable over time and not easily changed. Low LPCs tend to remain low, moderate LPCs tend to remain moderate, and high LPCs tend to remain high. As was pointed out earlier in the chapter, research shows that the test–retest reliability of the LPC is very strong (Fiedler & Garcia, 1987).

Cont...

2. Determining Situational Favorableness: the degree to which a situation enables the leader to exert influence over the followers.

- Fiedler identified three situational characteristics
- Leader-member relations: is the relationship good or poor? Do the followers trust, respect, accept, and have confidence in the leader?
- Task structure: is the task structured or unstructured? Do employees perform routine, unambiguous, standard tasks that are easily understood?
- Position power: is position power strong or weak? Does the leader have the power to assign work, reward and punish, hire and fire, and give praises and promotions?

3. Determining the appropriate leadership style:

- Question 1: are leader-member relations good or poor?
- Question 2: is the task structured or unstructured?
- Question 3: is position power strong or weak?

Cont...

Fiedler's Contingency Model: An Eight-Octant Continuum

Cont...

B. LEADERSHIP CONTINUUM

- leadership behavior is on a continuum from autocrat (or boss-centered) to democrat (employee centered) leadership.
- Their model focuses on who makes the decisions.
- There are seven major styles based on the use of boss-centered versus employee centered.
- When one moves away from the autocratic extreme, the amount of subordinates' participation and involvement in decision making increases.
- Before selecting one of the seven leadership styles, the user must consider the following three factors, or variables:

Cont...

- The manager: what is the leader's preferred style, based on experience, expectation, values, background, knowledge, feeling of security, and confidence in the subordinates?
- The subordinates: what is the subordinates' preferred style for the leader, based on experience, expectation, and so on? Generally, the more willing and able the subordinates are to participate, the more freedom to participate should be given.
- The situation: what are the environmental considerations, such as the organization's size, structure, climate, goals, and technology? Upper-level managers also influence leadership styles.

- Autocratic/Telling Style: the leader makes the decisions and announces them, expecting subordinates to carry out without question. In an emergency, a telling style may be most appropriate and would normally be considered justified by the group (as long as the general climate of that group is supportive and mature).
- Selling or Persuasive Style: the leader takes the decisions for the group without discussion and consultation but he believes that people will be better motivated if they are persuaded that the decisions are good ones. So the leader does a lot of explanations to overcome any possible resistance and to persuade that the decisions are good. The selling style would tend to fit situations in which the group leader alone possesses all the information on which the decision must be based and which at the same time calls for a very high level of commitment and enthusiasm on the part of group members if the task is to be carried through successfully.

Cont...

- Entertaining Concerns: The leader presents his/her decision and invites subordinates to ask questions about the decision. Here also the leader makes the decision without discussion and consultation with subordinates.
- Developing: The leader presents tentative decision subject to change. The leader confers with the group members after taking decisions and asks their feelings and their suggestion. If the subordinates' advices are appropriate and can enhance the decision, the leader may change his tentative decision.

Cont...

- Consulting: leader presents problem, gets suggestions, and makes decision. The leader confers with the group members before taking decision and, in fact, considers their advice and their feelings when framing decision. The leader may not always accept the subordinates' advice but they (subordinates) are likely to feel that they can have some influence. Under this leadership style the decision and the full responsibility for it remain with the leader. The consulting style is likely to be most appropriate when there is time for decision and when the information on which the decision needs to be based lies among the members of the group.
- Framing: The leader defines the decision limits and asks groups to make decision within the limit.
- Democratic/Joining Style: leader permits subordinates to function within limits defined by leader. The leader will allow the decision to emerge out of the process of group discussion. The leader's role is that of conference leader, or chair, rather than that of decision taker.

Cont...

C. SITUATIONAL LEADERSHIP MODEL

- suggests that effective leaders vary their style with the maturity/readiness of followers.
- Employee readiness or maturity refers to the employee's or work team's ability and willingness to accomplish a specific task and take responsibility for directing his/her/its own behavior.
- Ability refers to the extent that the follower's has the skills and knowledge to perform the task without the leader's guidance.
- Willingness refers to the follower's self-motivation and commitments to perform the assigned task.
- It takes the two dimensional leadership styles and the four quadrants, and develops four leadership styles based on amount of directive and supportive behavior provided, which they call telling, selling, participating, and delegating.

Cont...

- 1. Telling: telling has high task and low support behavior.
 - The leader provides clear instructions and specific directions.
 - This style is appropriate when followers' readiness/maturity level is low.
- 2. Selling: it has high task and high supportive behavior.
 - Selling style is appropriate if the employees' readiness/maturity level is from moderate to low.
- 3. Participating: it has high supportive behavior and low task behavior.
 - It is best matched with a moderate to high employee readiness/maturity level.
- 4. Delegating: it has low task and supportive behavior.
 - This style is best match with high employee readiness level.

Transformational, transactional and servant leaders

- Modern organizations have become extremely complex because of the necessity to adapt to dynamic environmental factors.
- primary organizational task is to identify and develop effective leaders who can create, implement, and control effective change strategies that align the organization's structure with its strategies.

Transformational Leadership

- Transforming leadership as a process where leaders and followers raise one another to higher levels of morality and motivation.
- a person interacts with others and is able to create a solid relationship that results in a high percentage of trust, that ultimately increase motivation, both intrinsic and extrinsic, in both leaders and followers.
- Such leaders transform their followers through their inspirational nature and charismatic personalities.
- Rules and regulations are flexible, guided by group norms.
- These attributes provide a sense of belonging for the followers as they can easily identify with the leader and its purpose.

Cont...

- happens when a Leader encourage followers to share a vision, allowing them to achieve the vision, and providing the opportunity to develop their individual potential.
- The goal of transformational leadership is
 - to transform people and organizations in a literal sense, to change them in mind and heart;
 - enlarge vision, insight and understanding;
 - clarify purposes;
 - Make behavior congruent with beliefs, principles, or values; and
 - bring about changes that are permanent, self- perpetuating, and momentum building.

Cont...

- Components of transformational leadership: “Four common I’s are”
 - Idealized influence, Inspirational motivation, Intellectual motivation, Individualized consideration
- Characteristics of transformational leader:
 - They visibly see themselves as change agents
 - They are brave
 - They believe in people
 - They are driven by a strong set of values
 - They are life-long learners
 - They can cope with complexity, uncertainty, and ambiguity
 - They are visionaries
- Transformational leadership is about change, innovation, and entrepreneurship.
- give followers a “can do” attitude that makes the vision achievable.

Cont...

- elements/acts of transformational leadership
- Act 1: Recognizing the Need for Revitalization(recognizing the need for change to cope up with changing env't)
- Act 2: Creating a New Vision (visualizes the changed organization and motivates people to make it become a reality.)
- Act 3: Institutionalizing the Change : The transformational leader guides people as they make the vision become a reality.
- To realize the vision the transformational leader will do the following:
 - Communicating the Vision
 - Modeling the Vision
 - Building Commitment to the Vision

Cont...

Transactional Leadership(Exchange theory)

- Refers the transaction made between the leader and the followers.
- the theory values a positive and mutually beneficial relationship.
- the leader must find a means to align to adequately reward (or punish) his follower, for performing leader-assigned task.
- transactional leaders are most efficient when they develop a mutual reinforcing environment.
- state that humans in general are seeking to maximize pleasurable experiences and to diminish un-pleasurable experiences.
- It is based on the principle of “you do this work for me and I will give this reward to you.”
- Transactional leadership focuses more on middle and first-line managers who help the transformational leader take their unit through the three acts.
- motivates subordinates by rewarding them for high performance and reprimand or punish low performers

Cont...

Servant Leadership

- It is based on a commitment to serving others and to helping people use their talents to full potential while working together in organizations that benefit society.
- It is “other centered,” not “self-centered.”
- It emphasizes the leader’s duty to serve his/her follower.

Traditional Boss	Servant Leader
Begins with a personal drive to achieve top position of power	Begins with a desire to serve others from any place in the organization.
Operates in a highly competitive manner. Possesses an independent mindset. Finds it important to receive personal credit for achievement	Operates in a highly collaborative and interdependent manner. Knows that all can gain by working together to create win/win solutions. Gives credit to others.

Uses personal power, fear, and intimidation to get what s/he wants.	Uses personal trust, respect, and unconditional love to build bridges and do what’s best for the “whole.”
Focuses solely on fast action.	Focuses on gaining understanding, input, and buy-in from all parties on essential issues. Understands that faster is often slower because people support what they help create.
Controls information in order to maintain power	Shares big-picture information. Coaches others by providing context and asking thoughtful questions to help them come to decisions by themselves.
Spends more time telling and giving orders than listening.	Listens deeply and respectfully to others, especially to those with dissenting views.
Derives a sense of confidence and personal worth from building his or her own talents and abilities.	Derives a sense of fulfillment from mentoring, coaching, and growing collaboratively with others

Sees supporters as a power base. Uses perks and titles to signal to others who has power.	Develops trust across constituencies and sees the ability to facilitate interdependent solutions as a core value. Breaks down needless barriers caused by hierarchy.
Speaks first and believes that his or her ideas are the most important. Often dominates the conversation and intimidates opponents.	Listens first. Values others' input, invites others into the conversation, and is able to build strength through differences.
. Understands internal politics and uses them for personal gain.	Is sensitive to what motivates others and balances what is best for the individual with what is best for the group.
Views accountability as assigning blame	Views accountability as creating a safe environment for learning. Ensures that lessons learned from mistakes are shared.
Uses negative humor (often put-downs and sarcasm) to control, ridicule, or exclude others.	Uses inclusive humor to lift up others and make it safe to learn from mistakes. Is the first to let themselves become vulnerable.

Cont...

- Servant-leadership encourages collaboration, trust, foresight, listening, and the ethical use of power and empowerment.”
- the critical behaviors of leaders are;
- Asking questions instead of giving answers
- Providing opportunities for others to lead you
- Doing real work in support of others instead of only the reverse
- Becoming a matchmaker instead of a "central switch"
- Seeking common understanding instead of consensus

Team Leadership

SOLO LEADER	TEAM LEADER
Plays unlimited role – the Solo Leader interferes in everything	Chooses to limit role to preferred team roles – delegates roles to others
